

Commission into Prosperity and Community Placemaking: Call for Evidence

August 2020

Reporting in summer 2021, the Create Streets Foundation's No Place Left Behind Commission into Prosperity and Community Placemaking will generate new ideas to help "level up" England as part of the country's recovery from the COVID-19 crisis. Our Call for Evidence is open until Monday 2nd November 2020, and we invite and encourage responses from all who feel they have a stake in what the "levelling up" agenda should mean on the ground for communities.

No Place Left Behind will recommend changes to policy and practice to improve the quality of people's surroundings and of lives lived in England's poorer communities: places which have been called "left behind", places where local people feel their environment has been neglected, places which struggle to attract interest from investors, or places which are simply unable to make the most of their buildings, streets and natural spaces right now. We believe these places have been under-valued for too long.

We will develop new ideas to support community-led regeneration in these neighbourhoods, with a strong focus on approaches which allow communities to define and drive improvement for themselves as part of the government's "levelling up" agenda. This includes community-led housing, community-led business, transfers of assets to community ownership and co-operative action to maintain and improve green and blue spaces, amongst many other approaches.

We are interested in the experiences of people living or working in neighbourhoods that have a distinct identity but feel they are in decline, or are suffering neglect from more affluent parts of the country. We want to know about the opportunities these neighbourhoods provide for the people living and working in them and what would make life better. We want to know about past and current projects to improve life in these neighbourhoods - what has worked well, what hasn't, and what future projects and programmes need to do to succeed in getting a fairer and better deal for left behind places.

We particularly want to hear from, for example:

- People who live or work in a left-behind place;
- Local government officials and politicians;
- Businesses and private investors;
- Community-led business owners, staff and users;
- People with experience of community and resident-led activity;
- Third sector representatives;
- Central government officials and politicians; and
- People with experience of working with any of these groups, or others, to improve local life.

Our questions cover a range of topics of interest to different groups. Please do not feel obliged to answer all questions. As appropriate your answer can reference your personal or professional experience in one place, or your observations across a range of places. We will use the evidence you share with us to shape our understanding of the challenges left behind places face and the opportunities that exist to overcome these. We will publish our findings in an interim report in January 2021, followed by a final report giving the Commission's recommendations for moving forward in summer 2021.

We would be grateful to receive responses by Monday 2nd November 2020.

About the Commission

The Create Streets Foundation's No Place Left Behind Commission into Prosperity and Community Placemaking is led by 15 expert Commissioners and delivered in partnership with Power to Change, Local Trust, Karbon Homes and the Legatum Institute. It is chaired by Toby Lloyd, the former head of policy at Shelter and former housing advisor to the Prime Minister. You can read more about the Commission's work at: <http://www.createstreetsfoundation.org.uk/no-place-left-behind/>

We use the term "left behind" in our initial work despite some misgivings, as this term has significant currency in public debate about these places and amongst many people living and working in them. No Place Left Behind will explore alternative ways of thinking and talking about so-called "left behind" places as part of our work over the next year.
